WOUNDED

Sgt. A. A. McLeary, Beaudesert, 2nd occ.

(The Telegraph, Brisbane, Queensland – 9 November, 1918)

MILITARY FUNERAL

On Friday afternoon, by the kind permission of the Vicar of Westerham and the Military Authorities, a military funeral of a gallant Australian took place here. The young man had been all through the war, having taken part in the Dardenelles and Gallipoli campaigns, and having been wounded in France, was sent to Dunsdale Hospital, Westerham, in 1916. He made many friends, and was popular with all parties.

Returning to France, he took part in most of the serious fighting that took place. Last September he was resting in a dugout when a shell burst, wounding him in the temple. He was removed to England, and was in hospital at Bronsbury, where he passed away on March 2nd.

The body was brought to Westerham (where he had spent some happy times) on Thursday, and was placed in the Church for the night. On Friday a firing party and bearers of the Australian Forces came down by rail, under the charge of Warrant Officer Walter J. M. Sedgley, West Australian Headquarters, London, and the splendid way in which they carried out their painful duties was very marked. The service was conducted by Senior Chaplain the Rev. W. Floyd Shampson, and was attended by many of the nurses who served at Westerham, and Mr and Mrs Buck, besides many of the inhabitants of Westerham.

The coffin was covered with the Union Jack, and many beautiful wreaths were also sent. The breast-plate stated: "Alexander Allen McLeary, 31st Brigade, A.F.A., died March 2nd, 1919, aged 26." After the service the usual three rounds were fired and the "Last Post" sounded, Mr Benson, of Keswick Studely, took photos of the grave. We hear that he had lost a brother in France, and another has been wounded. — Australian papers, please copy.

DIED OF WOUNDS

A HERO OF GALLIPOLI

THE LATE SERGEANT McLEARY

MILITARY FUNERAL AT WESTERHAM

("The Westerham Herald," England)

No more fitting epitaph could be written of the late Sgt. A. A. McCleary (7th Battery, A.F.A.) than: "He was an Anzac." Answering the call to patriotism, he was amongst the first of those brave sons of Australia to offer their lives in the service of the Motherland.

Landing in Egypt his battery was soon afterwards drafted to Gallipoli, where their deeds immortalised them for all time. He was bitterly disappointed at being left behind to look after the horses, as he was then a driver. With that element of romance that quickens to action, he and two of his comrades smuggled themselves on board a boat and landed on the peninsula. His elder brother was serving in the Australian Light Horse, and finding him, he stayed with him for a day or two, then suddenly appeared in the midst of his own battery, to their great astonishment.

The authorities inflicted punishment for breach of discipline, which to his delight took the form of making him a gunner, the ardent wish of his heart.

He went through the furious fighting of the Gallipoli operations without a scratch, and earned the rights to be named with those heroes—the “Anzacs.” Transferred to France he again saw fighting and was wounded. Recovering, his health was, however, impaired by the hardships he had undergone, and he subsequently fell ill.

In the early autumn of 1916 he made the acquaintance of Westerham, as a patient at Dunsdale V.A. D. Hospital. There he endeared himself to the staff and all with whom he came in contact. He was of a lovable character with the buoyant spirits of youth, the life and soul of the patients, and their mentor in the example he set in strictly observing the rules of the hospital. He was looked upon by the staff as the “Guard” of the establishment to whom any refractory patient was kindly referred, and always with the happiest results.

With regret to both patients and staff, he had to leave to resume his military duties. After a long spell of duty in France he was sent to Woolwich in 1918 for a special course in artillery, and passed his examination with distinction, obtaining 96 per cent marks. Promoted to Instructor he was for a time attached to one of the Australian camps, and was able to frequently visit Westerham and his friends. He always spoke of the town as his “English home,” so dear had it and the happy associations become.

The critical period of June 1918 on the Western front when the Germans were making their final desperate attempt to break through, called every available man there and Sergeant McLeary was sent over to rejoin his battery. He was in the thick of the hottest fights, and wrote home to his friends that he never felt so fit in his life.

On September 10th engaged in the fiercest fighting his battery was being severely shelled, and the men received orders to seek a more sheltered place. Sergt. McLeary went into a comrade's dugout and sat on the bed. A shell from the enemy burst in the dug-out and he received a dangerous skull wound over the left temple.

He was treated for three weeks at a casualty clearing station in France and then sent to the First London General Hospital, afterwards taken to Beech House, Hospital, Brondesbury, and then again to the First Loudon General Hospital, where in spite of the skill of the surgeon and care of the nursing staff he passed away on the 2nd of March.

He was only 26 years of age, of splendid physique, and bore his sufferings with fortitude, never complaining, and always with a smile, thanked those who ministered to him.

It was a tragic wound for Sergt. McLeary for had he escaped, a week later he would have sailed with the other Anzacs for Australia on home leave. And within two months the Armistice was signed ending all fighting!

THE FUNERAL

With the kind permission of the Vicar, and by arrangement with the Australian Military Authorities, the funeral was allowed to take place at Westerham, where Sergt. McLeary had passed so many happy hours.

The body was brought from London on Thursday, and the coffin, covered with the Australian flag and many beautiful flowers, rested in St. Mary's Church for the night.

With full military honours the burial took place on Friday 7th. The chief mourners were: Lt. J. Laird Busk, 1st V.B.R W K. Regt., Mrs Busk, Sister Cross and Mrs Oldrey (formerly of Dunsdale), and his chum Sergt. H. Maclean, also of the 7th Battery, A.F.A.

Amongst those present were: Mrs Acworth, Miss Beresford, Mrs Lewis, Mrs E. Jenner, Mrs A. Weller, Miss S. Robinson, Miss K. Hooker, Miss D. Robinson, Mrs Baker, Mrs F. G. Remnant, Mrs Brown, Mrs Wilkins, and Mr J. A. Hughes (representing former staff at Dunsdale), Rev. and Mrs S. Le Mesurier, Miss Streatfeild, Mrs Bushell, Mrs Hatherall, Miss Burton, etc.

The service was impressively conducted by one of the Chaplains of the Australian Forces, the Rev. W. Floyd Shannon, O.B.F. Mr Claud Hunter, of Sevenoaks, who presided at the organ, reverently played “Prelude” (Atkan), and “Andantino” (Salome).

Deeply moving was the rendering of those beautiful hymns, “Fight the good Fight” and “Lead kindly Light.” At the conclusion of the service the Nunc Dimittis was chanted as the body was borne from the Church.

The last tributes of respect by his comrades were paid at the graveside, three volleys being fired by the firing party, and the “Last Post” sounded by Bugler M. J. Harvey.

Warrant Officer W. J. M. Sedgley was in charge of the burial party, and Sergt. J. Mercer in charge of the Guard from the Australian Headquarters, London.

Floral tributes were sent from the following:—For our dear Jock, his loving parents, sisters and brother; No. 1725 Sgt. A. A. McLeary comrades of the 7th battery, A.F.A. ; with much sympathy, Matron and staff at Beech House hospital, Brondesbury; “In sacred sleep they rest; say not of brave men that they die,” Mr and Mrs Busk ; for dear Jock, his little friends, Douglas and Arthur Busk; with deep sympathy, Mrs Charles A. Commonwealth War Graves Commission Headstones

The Defence Department, in 1920/21, contacted the next of kin of the deceased World War 1 soldiers to see if they wanted to include a personal inscription on the permanent headstone. Space was reserved for 66 letters only (with the space between any two words to be counted as an additional letter) & the rate per letter was around 3 ½ d (subject to fluctuation).

The expense in connection for the erection of permanent headstones over the graves of fallen soldiers was borne by the Australian Government.

(Information obtained from letters sent to next of kin in 1921)

A letter from Base Records, dated 26th July, 1921, to Mr S. McLeary, Flinders, Fassifern Line, Queensland, advised that a letter from the Defence Dept. concerning an inscription on the headstone of his son, the late Sergeant A. A. McLeary, had not been answered & non-receipt of a reply within 21 days would have to be accepted as indicating that no further action was to be taken.

Serjeant A. A. McLeary does have a personal inscription on his headstone.
