A Letter from The Matron, Military Hospital, Fovant – dated 10th April, 1918 reads:

Pte Oliver died in this hospital on the 22.3.18 from malignant growth of the lung. He was admitted on the 7.2.18 with pain in the chest and left eye, growth on the chest rapidly extended, specialists were called in, but it was agreed an operation could not be performed and he gradually got worse until he passed away. We sent for his two brothers from France and they were with him and for some time previously until his death. He asked to be told the worst and his resignation and patience to what he knew was inevitable was splendid, we never had a better patient. He was buried at Compton Chamberlayne.

Driver A. H. Oliver's Will dated 15th December, 1915 – 2 days before embarking:

Dear Ken

These few lines are just to express a few little wishes. The trinkets of mine Cigarette case and match box are to be given to Jim. My deferred pay and any money that I might have saved is to go to Mother if anything should happen to her then it is to go to Jean. There is nothing more worth mentioning which is property of mine. I remain Your affectionate Brother A. H. Oliver

A later Will, dated 16th July, 1917 stated "my personal estate I bequeath to Elizabeth Oliver "Pendiana" Macpherson Street, Neutral Bay, Sydney".

Commonwealth War Graves Commission Headstones

The Defence Department, in 1920/21, contacted the next of kin of the deceased World War 1 soldiers to see if they wanted to include a personal inscription on the permanent headstone at Compton Chamberlayne Cemetery. Space was reserved for 66 letters only (with the space between any two words to be counted as an additional letter) & the rate per letter was around 3 ½ d (subject to fluctuation).

The expense in connection for the erection of permanent headstones over the graves of fallen soldiers was borne by the Australian Government.

(Information obtained from letters sent to next of kin in 1921)

Driver Oliver does have a personal inscription on his headstone.
